Every puzzle in this book was generated by original software written for Puzzle Press and was checked by a separate computer program before printing: each puzzle has exactly one correct answer, and every answer is in the back of the book.

Word lists, instructions and design were created by Puzzle Press with the help of AI tools.

All names, places and cases in this book are made up by a computer program; any resemblance to real people is coincidence. The case headings and clue sentences are assembled by code from word lists.

How to Play

Who did it?

Each case has a table of suspects and a card of clues. Every clue is true about the culprit. Take the clues one at a time and tick the box beside every suspect that clue rules out. When you have used every clue, exactly one suspect is left: that is the culprit.

Reading the clues

"The culprit does not keep a cat" rules out everyone with a cat. "If the culprit drives a red car, then they are not a baker" rules out only red-car bakers. "The culprit keeps a dog or enjoys golf (or both)" rules out everyone who does neither. A month with 31 days is January, March, May, July, August, October or December.

Easy to harder

Cases 1-7 are easy (48 suspects, 6 clues); cases 8-14 are medium (72 suspects, 9 clues); cases 15-20 are harder (96 suspects, 12 clues). Every clue is needed, and a computer has checked that each case has exactly one answer. The answer key in the back names the culprit and lists, clue by clue in order, the suspects each one crosses out.

Large print

Clues and suspect tables are printed at 14 point or larger, with a tick box beside every suspect. A pencil works best, so you can rub out and try again.
